

Modern religiosity

Now, we have reviewed some of the most important circumstances and influences that have formed the Swedish character and lifestyle over the centuries. We have seen how the Nordic climate, at least to some degree, contributed to (or even forced) the development of a communal mentality and the formation of the Swedish dream of working in an office and office culture. We have seen the medieval development of a kind of double morality (formulated by Luther and adopted by Sweden) that condemns the rich for sin but at the same time is very tolerant of the sins of the wider public, especially the poor. We have seen how wars and destruction in other countries in Europe led to the unprecedented economic development of a country, Sweden, which was an uninteresting and extremely poor territory and remained outside the fighting. We mentioned the success of the Social Democratic Party in cashing in on this historical fortune, and how wisely the party learned a language to manipulate the Swedish masses, and how they defined and refined the language of their demagogy and the methods of successful brainwashing of the masses. We remind the reader that V.I. Lenin succeeded in Russia in 1917 with his communist takeover and started to practice the Marxist (re)distribution of wealth (formulated by K Marx, Das Kapital, 1867) providing an example to the rest of the unhappy world. Furthermore, the outcome of the Second World War was extremely favorable for the communist ideology, informing the world that the communist way was possible and capitalism was in decline.

Founders of a new religiosity: Marx, Engels, Lenin

Cartoon 25 : Don't mix Sweden with Eden

These circumstances laid the foundation of a new religion in Sweden, the adoration of ALLA.

Please do not confuse this with ALLAH, which is the Arabic name for God and has nothing to do with this new and breathtaking religion.

ALLA is the Swedish word for EVERYBODY and refers to two religious concepts and personal faiths: First “Alla, Tillsammans” (“Everybody Altogether”) and second “Alla Skall Ha” (“Everybody Should Have”). This religion occupies all places in the Swedish heart and all nerves in the Swedish brain.

Everybody altogether

Everybody altogether is the overwhelming declaration of the total and unrestricted power of the masses over individuals. It means, exactly as it states, that we will do everything together and nothing alone (on or our own) and consists of a long series of instructions. Just to mention some for the sake of illustration...
